Report description:

Mobile phones experienced a notable rebound in 2024 amid the rebound in the economy and weaker inflationary pressures with consumer and vendor confidence rising. Inflation peaked at the start of 2023 but began to slow down towards the end of the year, affecting consumer spending habits and curbing mobile phone sales. Initially, high inflation rates had led to cautious spending and a more conservative approach from vendors. However, as inflation eased and consumer confidence started to recover, t...
