Report description:

Portable players in Norway are expected to register a significant volume decline in 2024, across all products, with portable media players in particular performing badly, with volume sales falling by over a fifth. Wireless speakers are expected to fare best, in that they will see the lowest volume decline. That being said the boon is over for wireless speakers, as it reaches maturity. With many consumers already owning a wireless speaker, they do not feel the need to upgrade.
