Report description:

Baby food in Finland has demonstrated resilience despite a declining birth rate in 2024. Interestingly, fruit purees have become popular as healthy snacks due to their long shelf life and nutritional benefits. However, the negative birth rate poses a significant threat to volume sales, making it imperative to focus on offering value-added products to drive value sales. The competition within the product area is expected to remain fierce, with other baby food categories projected to experience gr...
