Report description:

Baby food continues to show a relatively weak recovery in retail volume terms in 2024 when compared to other categories within dairy products and alternatives. Sales of baby food plummeted in 2022 as a significant number of women and children fled the country following Russia's invasion of Ukraine. Although some families have since returned birth rates remain lower with many couples delaying having children due to security concerns and instability in the economy. The recovery of baby food is als...
