Report description:

According to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), milk provides essential nutrients and is an important source of dietary energy, and high-quality proteins and fats that are necessary for good health. However, Chile registers an annual per capita consumption below the average of developed countries and below the parameter considered recommended by the FAO. This is a contradictory situation, since Chile has a modern dairy industry, with more than 2,400 producers supp...
