Report description:

The market for eye care products in the Philippines is poised for further expansion in 2024. One significant factor driving this rising demand is the increased amount of screen time in the daily lives of local consumers. With many individuals working from home for at least part of the week, primarily on computers, and the continued surge in online streaming and digital entertainment, eye-related conditions such as myopia are becoming more common, leading to a heightened need for effective eye ca...
