Report description:

In 2024, eye care in the US is expected to see dynamic retail current value growth for another year, with both standard and allergy eye care expected to see similar strong increases. The strong performance of allergy eye care can largely be attributed to a prolonged and severe allergy season in the US in this year. The trend of an extended allergy season is also expected to persist in the future, due to the impact of climate change, resulting in shorter and milder winters, and longer periods of...
