Report description:

Consumers in Slovenia continue to experience the impact of inflation, though it is easing in 2024. This has led to lower, yet still notable, price increases across all consumer health categories. Despite this and demographic challenges facing the country, most areas of consumer health managed to remain in positive territory, registering minimal to moderate retail volume growth, which with price increases resulted in solid to strong value growth in 2024. Slovenian consumer health companies remain...
