Report description:

Ongoing dietary challenges continue to support demand for digestive remedies in South Africa. The country regularly suffers from rolling electricity blackouts, or loadshedding, with these scheduled blackouts often occurring in some areas two to three times a day. In addition, they often occur during mealtimes, which has created a strong dependency on limited-service restaurants in South Africa, as many of these foodservice establishments have backup power supply in the form of generators. This e...
