Report description:

Consumer health in Cameroon continues to be affected by inflationary pressures and counterfeit products in 2024. According to the National Institute of Statistics, the "chemical, plastic, and pharmaceutical" industry experienced an increase in prices in production costs in Cameroon by the end of 2023, while that of other industries fell. This, combined with the high cost of living, means prices of consumer health products sold at pharmacists continue to be out of reach for a segment of consumers...
