Report description:

Retail volume sales of cooking ingredients and meals contracted in 2024 as Argentina's economic crisis intensified, with inflation reaching triple digits and the country entering recession. Weaker purchasing power primarily affected non-essential categories, such as pizza, ready meals and soup, with consumers replacing them with cheaper home-made meals. Argentinians opted to cook at home more frequently than usual, to the benefit of several categories, such as herbs and spices, edible oils, and...
