Report description:

Olive oil has continued to face significant price pressure in 2024, even as prices for other edible oils, such as sunflower and vegetable oil, have started to decline. Poor harvests in key olive oil-producing countries, combined with increased production costs, have resulted in significant price hikes in olive oil. This has made it a more expensive option for Danish consumers, who have therefore been turning to more affordable alternatives. While other types of edible oils have become more acces...
