Report description:

Sales of staple foods have seen a modest return to growth in retail volume terms in 2024 with growth being supported by the fact that these are seen as essential items in the basic basket of goods among many Spanish households. Additionally, inflation has been brought under control, which has encouraged consumers to return to their usual consumption levels. Although price growth has slowed in 2024 compared to the previous two years, production costs are not decreasing. This is due to various fac...
