Report description:

In 2023, the pack type share of HDPE bottles continued to increase for goat milk packaging. HDPE is a food-safe plastic that does not leach harmful chemicals into the products it holds. This helps maintain the freshness and quality of dairy products by providing a barrier against light, air and moisture, which can degrade the product's taste, texture or nutritional content. HDPE bottles are also durable and cost-effective, helping to make savings on transportation and manufacturing costs. This p...
