Report description:

Glass bottles remained by far the dominant pack type for wine in 2023, still accounting for three quarters of total packaging retail volumes in the category. However, In 2023, bag in box packaging increasingly captured volume share in wine in the US. This type of packaging is more cost-effective compared with traditional glass bottles, thanks to lower production and packaging expenses, and reduced shipping costs due to its lightweight nature. The built-in spout allows for convenient pouring with...
