Report description:

The retail unit volumes of HDPE bottles continued to hold the biggest share in overall home care products in the US in 2023. The preference for HDPE bottles can be attributed to their practicality and user-friendliness in dispensing home care products. These bottles can be designed with convenient features, such as handles, spouts or spray nozzles. In addition, the appearance of HDPE packaging can influence customer perception, with a variety of colours, finishes and branding options possible to...
