Report description:

In 2023, processed fruit and vegetables, and its packaging, experienced a difficult year. The primary factor behind the category's sales decline was the stability and even occasional reductions in the prices of fresh fruit and vegetables throughout 2023. This saw consumers opt to purchase fresh fruit and vegetables from local groceries rather than selecting less natural processed alternatives. In 2022, the prices of canned fruit and vegetables had increased far less than their fresh counterparts...
