Report description:

The unit volume sales of processed fruit and vegetables packaging in Hong Kong recorded a decline in 2023. While the major pack types still maintained their respective positions, most of the leading pack types, including metal food cans and flexible plastic, registered falling sales in 2023. This trend was attributed to falling at-home meal consumption, largely influenced by more dining out, the return to the office and increased travel activities. In addition, processed fruit and vegetables fac...
