Report description:

Processed meat and seafood packaging had been in decline for a number of years before the pandemic resulted in a growth spike in 2020 in Canada. Since 2020, it has been back in decline, including another fall in its packaging unit volumes in 2023. Flexible plastic remained the most popular pack type in processed meat and seafood packaging in 2023 thanks to its versatility across a number of product areas, with folding cartons and other plastic trays also heavily used packaging formats. Metal foo...
