Report description:

Menswear in Egypt has experienced a decline in volume terms in 2024 despite a marked increase in value sales, driven by sharp price hikes. These price increases stem primarily from the devaluation of the Egyptian pound, which lost over 60% of its value, significantly raising the costs of imported raw materials such as textiles and threads, particularly those sourced from China. In the first quarter of 2024, a shortage of foreign currency further exacerbated the situation, causing an initial spike...
