Report description:

Retail volume sales of consumer appliances are set to grow in the Czech Republic in 2024. After two years of declining household consumption, a turnaround is expected in the final year of the review period. As inflation has dropped significantly, real wages and purchasing power are again growing. Also supported by high accumulated savings, household consumption is set to re-emerge as the main GDP driver in 2024 and 2025. Exports are forecast to increase further, as supply chain bottlenecks have...
