Report description:

Debit cards in France saw its number of cards almost stagnate in 2024, while transactions rose robustly and value sales recorded double-digit growth. The first trend is mainly because of a further increase in the unit prices of debit cards - just one year after the government's demand for price moderation, French banks increased their prices in 2024. For the customer, this translated into higher account maintenance costs as well as higher bank card prices. In addition, banks' commission from ATM...
