Report description:

Sales of fresh food declined in retail volume terms in 2024, with categories such as fish and seafood, fruits, pulses, and vegetables all reporting declines. Prices continued to rise with many of these having been impacted by an increase in production costs as drought and heavy rainfall impacted key production areas. An increase in packaging and transportation costs also impacted final prices. Nonetheless, despite this, prices did rise at a slower rate in 2024 compared to 2023 with some companies...
