Report description:

Like overall apparel and footwear, menswear is also set to experience a slowdown in its retail current value growth rate in Mexico in 2024, primarily due to rising prices within the category. Historically, menswear is more sensitive to price fluctuations than womenswear, and given that prices have been increasing for most of the year, it is expected that consumption will be affected. However, most categories are still expected to maintain retail volume growth, even if this is low. Exceptions are...
