Report description:

Retail volume sales of pulses continued to be negatively impacted by inflation in 2023 and 2024. Producers of pulses have been impacted by increasing production costs including a rise in the cost of raw materials, packaging and transportation. Drought also affected production in 2023 and 2024 which placed further pressure on the supply chain leading to further price increases, although manufacturers expect to see better harvests in the coming years.
