Report description:

In 2024, Guatemala's home care industry benefited from the local economy's continued resilience with GDP expanding for the fourth consecutive year - and annual inflation rates recording their lowest increase since 2020. This stable economic environment had a favourable impact on consumer demand for home care products, driving growth both in volume and value. The improved purchasing power of households, supported by economic stability, contributed to a steady rise in the consumption of these prod...
