Report description:

The significant rise in temperatures throughout Colombia has increased the presence of insects like ants, spiders, and mosquitoes in the country, as well as contributing to the rapid growth in the number of dengue cases. According to the Ministry of Health, in 2024 the number of cases increased by 208% compared to 2023. Climate change is leading to the proliferation of Aedes aegypti mosquitoes in various regions of the country. This is driving sales of insecticide coils and spray/aerosol insecti...
