Report description:

Insecticides in Croatia is witnessing a growing preference for multifunctional products that go beyond pest control. Consumers increasingly value products that offer added benefits, catering to various household needs while being cost-effective and space-saving. For instance, Kamfor tablets, used for repelling moths, are marketed not only for their insect-repelling properties but also for their ability to remove unpleasant shoe odours and impart a fresh scent. This multi-functionality trend taps...
