Report description:

The home insecticides category in Kazakhstan enjoyed strong sales growth in 2024, largely influenced by weather conditions as demand for these products tends to be highly seasonal. The hot summer of 2024 played a pivotal role in driving increased sales, with higher temperatures contributing to a surge in insect activity and, consequently, the need for effective insect control solutions. While prices within the category also rose, the rate of increase was more moderate compared to the sharp price...
