Report description:

Home insecticides in the Philippines saw slow retail volume and current value growth in 2024, even after a year of exceptional growth in 2023. Urbanisation has had a substantial impact on the demand for pest control products in the Philippines. As the country is experiencing rapid urban growth, with more people moving to cities and metropolitan areas, factors such as increased population density and increased food waste have contributed to the increased need for effective pest control measures.
