demand for office furniture industry in China is growing year by year. China's office furniture enterprises have first-class production equipment, and the quality of products is stable and reliable, and cost-effective. China is the major exporter and the main supplier of office furniture for the United States, Germany, France, the United Kingdom and Japan. Both domestic and foreign office furniture companies play an important part in China's office furniture market. The office furniture market in China gradually built into an industrial-scale business through several decades of evolution. In the long term, due to the booming need, the office furniture market in China still has potential.

Desks & Chairs Segment Occupies the Largest Market Share of Home Office Furniture

The COVID-19 pandemic has accelerated the adoption of remote work across Asia. As people transitioned to working from home, the demand for home office furniture, especially desks and chairs, surged. These are essential components of a functional home office setup. With more people working from home for extended periods, the importance of ergonomics and comfort became a priority. This led to increased demand for ergonomic chairs and adjustable desks to create comfortable and productive workspaces. Consumers in Asia are increasingly looking for furniture pieces that can be customized to meet their specific needs and preferences. This trend particularly applies to chairs and desks, where height, material, and design choices matter. The Asia market has seen a rise in entrepreneurship and home-based businesses. Entrepreneurs often require well-equipped home offices, further boosting the demand for desks and chairs. Desks and chairs, especially those at different price points, are more accessible to a broader range of consumers, which also contributes to their dominance in the home office furniture market.
