Report description:

The France Disposal Tableware Market size is estimated at USD 238.87 million in 2025, and is expected to reach USD 283.01 million by 2030, at a CAGR of 3.45% during the forecast period (2025-2030).

The market is experiencing significant growth attributed to the rise in quick-service restaurants, cafes, and bars across the country. The increase in convenience-seeking customers is driving demand in the disposable tableware market. Moreover, the European food service disposal market is expected to yield high revenue, further boosting demand for disposable items. Over the forecast period, France is expected to show the highest growth rate in terms of volume consumption compared to other markets.

The rising need for practical and hygienic products is one reason for boosting the disposable tableware market in France. It is simple to use disposable dinnerware, which doesn't require the need to wash and store traditional tableware, which might take time and isn't necessarily hygienic. The rising popularity of outdoor activities like camping, picnics, and barbecues is another element fuelling market expansion. Since disposable tableware is lightweight, portable, and disposable after use, it is useful for outdoor activities.

The market for throwaway tableware is not without its difficulties, though. The effect of disposable goods on the environment is one problem. Many people are looking for more sustainable alternatives to reduce the use of single-use plastics and other disposable items on the environment. This has increased the need for throwaway tableware that is both environmentally friendly and biodegradable. Overall, the convenience and hygienic advantages of disposable items, as well as the rising popularity of outdoor activities, are driving growth in the disposable tableware market in France. However, the sector is also dealing with issues relating to environmental worries, which could limit its future expansion.

France Disposal Tableware Market Trends

Increasing Urbanisation and Number of Takeaway Restaurants is driving the Market

The French disposable tableware market is currently experiencing substantial growth due to the increase in quick-service restaurants, cafes, and bars across France. There is a substantial increase in convenience-seeking customers, which would further drive demand in the disposable tableware market. The European food service disposal market was estimated to have a higher value in 2022 than in 2021, which would further add to the increasing demand for disposable items. France is projected to be the fastest-growing market over the forecast period in terms of volume consumption. Increased urbanization is also driving the growth of the disposable tableware market. The changing lifestyle of the urban population and the increase in household events are also driving the need for disposable tableware products.

Increasing Usage of Biodegradable Disposal Tableware

To follow this administrative commitment while liberating themselves from a brand image degraded by eco-responsible awareness, the players in the disposable tableware market are now focusing on biodegradable, higher-value-added products such as wood, which is now a fast-growing market.

The other issue in the French disposable tableware market remains recycling in the context of valorizing waste products and reducing their environmental impact. This is particularly the case with plastic cups because, according to the Association sante Environnement France (Asef), only 1% of the 4.73 billion plastic cups thrown away each year in France are recycled. To meet these new challenges, the players in the disposable tableware market in France are committed to a race for industrial innovation and commercial innovation as well as a questioning of their value chain with a share of the cost associated with greater packaging in the coming years.

France Disposal Tableware Industry Overview

The French disposable tableware market is semi-consolidated in terms of market share. Some of the major manufacturers operating currently dominate the market. The competitive factors that drive the performance of these major companies are pricing, availability, and environmental sustainability. However, there is a need for more technological advancement on these websites so that the user experience can be improved.
