Disposable tableware products include disposable cups, disposable plates, disposable bowls, disposable silverware, and other products. Consumers shifted toward essential products as they recognized disposable tableware as an alternative to conventional tableware. Market trends such as biodegradable plastics also drive the disposable tableware market's growth. Customers prefer to use disposable tableware such as plates, cups, etc., rather than steel or glass material because disposable tableware reduces the labor force by a significant margin, as washing the tableware is eliminated by using disposal tableware.

Also, the affordability of disposable tableware is high, which is why many household consumers have started to use disposable tableware. The market has penetrated even more profoundly since the household usage of disposable tableware began. The demand for disposable tableware has been increasing across the world because of the number of street food centers and hotels. Even in outdoor places like stadiums and malls, disposable tableware is the preferred option. All these factors account for the growth of the disposable tableware market.
