Increasing E-Commerce Sales Drives the Market

Decorative and illuminated mirrors are gaining popularity among North American consumers because they are integrated with features like lighting, Bluetooth speakers, and a touchscreen. This provides opportunities for manufacturers to create innovative products that meet changing consumer preferences. Increased growth of e-commerce channels helps companies expand their distribution channel to reach a broader audience. The e-commerce platform provides customers with more visibility and accessibility, which allows companies to increase sales and expand their customer base.

With the increasing popularity of e-commerce and convenience, online sales of decorative and illuminated mirrors are increasing. Consumers find it more convenient to purchase online because it provides a wide product selection and competitive pricing. E-commerce platform attracts customers by providing detailed product information, customer reviews, and doorstep delivery convenience. Hence, increasing e-commerce sales drives the market.

The United States Dominates the Market

Due to the booming construction and real estate sectors, the United States holds a significant market share in the decorative and illuminated mirror market. The rising focus on the interior design trend and rising awareness of energy-efficient solutions contribute to the growth of the decorative and illuminated mirror market in the United States. Also, the growing hospital and commercial sectors fuel the demand for illuminated mirrors.

Factors like increasing consumer interest in connected devices and customized services help expand the business of decorative and illuminated mirrors in the United States. Therefore, manufacturers of illuminated mirrors offer various models with different sizes, designs, and additional functionalities like LED lighting, demister pads, Bluetooth connectivity, and built-in audio systems. Therefore, the United States dominates the market.
