Key Highlights

Eesti Energia AS is a leading energy company based in Estonia, specializing in the production, distribution, and sale of electricity, heat, and natural gas. Founded in 1939, the company has played a crucial role in the development of Estonia's energy sector. Headquartered in Tallinn, Harju County, Eesti Energia operates across Estonia and has expanded its presence in neighboring countries, including Latvia, Lithuania, Finland, and Poland. The company serves both residential and commercial customers, offering a broad range of energy solutions tailored to meet different needs.

Eesti Energia is actively involved in multiple business segments, including traditional electricity generation, renewable energy, and the production of liquid fuels. The company has historically relied on oil shale as a primary energy source, making it a significant contributor to Estonia's energy independence. However, in line with global sustainability trends, Eesti Energia has been increasing its investments in renewable energy sources such as wind and solar power. Through its subsidiary, Enefit Green, the company focuses on expanding its portfolio of sustainable energy projects.

In addition to energy production, Eesti Energia offers energy efficiency consulting, smart home solutions, and digital services that enable customers to monitor and optimize their energy consumption. The company remains committed to innovation and environmental responsibility, actively working towards reducing its carbon footprint and promoting cleaner energy alternatives. With its strong presence in the Baltic energy market, Eesti Energia continues to be a key player in shaping the region's transition to sustainable and reliable energy solutions.
