Report description:

The Spain medical education market is projected to grow at a CAGR of 5.60% between 2025 and 2034.

Spain Medical Education Market Outlook

- In Spain, there are seventeen medical schools, with the University of Barcelona, University of Cordoba, and Rovira I Virgili University being some of the well-known medical universities globally.
- Based on QS subject ranking 2024 in Medicine, the University of Barcelona made its spot among Spain's top medical schools.
- Government initiatives for the betterment of the medical system in Spain, along with the rising need for medical professionals such as doctors and nurses are supporting the market.

Spain Medical Education Market Growth

The occurrences of pandemics and epidemics have influenced the choice of higher studies among the younger population in Spain. The increasing desire to help others as well as the good payment offered to medical professionals are further supporting the adoption of medical education. The healthcare system in Spain ranks among the top in Europe, with the level of healthcare and hospital assistance comprising both public and private at a higher level. The high-quality medical education provided by Spanish universities is internationally recognised, allowing medical students to work in any EU country of their choice. This further supports the market for Spain medical education.

Classroom-based courses are significantly being adopted by students across Spain. Typically, medical education in Spain consists of 6 years, which includes 10 hours of classroom sessions or 15 hours of independent study per student. The relatively affordable medical education in Spain is encouraging students to take up the course as their higher education.
