Key Highlights

TBank, formerly known as Tinkoff Bank, is a Russian commercial bank headquartered in Moscow. Founded in 2006 by entrepreneur Oleg Tinkov, the bank was established as a branchless, digital-only institution, marking a pioneering move in Russia's banking sector. This innovative approach allowed T-Bank to rapidly expand its customer base, offering a wide range of financial services through online platforms without the need for physical branches.

Over the years, TBank has evolved into a comprehensive digital financial ecosystem, providing services such as personal and business banking, investment solutions, insurance, and more. The bank's commitment to leveraging technology has positioned it as one of the world's largest digital banks by customer count.

In June 2024, the bank underwent a significant rebranding, changing its name from Tinkoff Bank to TBank. This change was part of a broader strategy to reflect its expanded services and to distance the brand from its founder, who had sold his stake in the company.

As of January 2025, TBank merged with Rosbank, further solidifying its position in the Russian banking industry. This merger expanded T-Bank's customer base and service offerings, enabling it to provide a more extensive range of financial products to individuals and businesses across the country.
