The Asia Pacific to Significantly Boost the Global Borneol Market Growth

Due to the presence of numerous pharmaceutical companies in the region, the Asia Pacific is expected to account for a significant portion of the global borneol market. Due to the product's significance in Chinese medicine, China is projected to hold a leading share in the borneol industry in the Asia Pacific. The borneol industry in North America is also expected to expand rapidly during the forecast period due to the rising production of biologic medicines in the region.

Borneol: Market Segmentation

Borneol refers to a crystalline cyclic alcohol which is, particularly used for the production of perfumes and other smelling substances. Borneol is often used as a messenger drug in traditional Chinese medicine, containing a number of herbs. It is also a part of several essential oils. Borneol is also used to prevent cardiovascular disease in a combined solution as it tones the heart and enhances circulation.

Rising Demand from the Pharmaceutical and Perfume Industries to Aid the Market Growth

The pharmaceutical and perfume sectors are significantly contributing to the demand for borneol. The pharmaceutical industry has gradually grown in recent years as the population is ageing and health services have been strengthened. The rapid advancements in the pharmaceutical industry have also contributed to the growth of the borneol industry as borneol is extensively used in the treatment for rheumatic diseases like spondyloarthritis. The rise in the disposable incomes in the emerging markets is anticipated to be followed by the improved living standards of the middle-class, as well as by a mild growth in the perfume industry, which is, in effect, anticipated to propel the market for borneol forward. In addition, the increasing demand for exotic and floral consumer products from the emerging regions is projected to further contribute to the industry's growth.
