Report description:

Based on vehicle type, the Australia recreational vehicle market share is driven by campervans as they are compact and self-contained and integrate accommodation and transportation in a single van. The compact size, versatility, flexibility, compact living space, mobility, and low maintenance of campervans as compared to larger RVs are boosting the Australia recreational vehicle market revenue. Motorhomes or campervans are fully self-contained vehicles integrated with driving compartments. Meanwhile, caravans offer flexibility, to accommodate the diverse needs of travellers they come in various sizes and configurations. The increasing van life culture has driven the demand for the Australia recreational vehicle market. It provides an outdoor experience to travellers while offering mobility and flexibility and is also known for minimalist living. Manufacturers and companies are becoming environmentally conscious and interested in electric and hybrid RVs. They also develop products with improved fuel efficiency and reduce carbon emissions. The Australian/New Zealand standards changed the guidelines and requirements to improve safety and consistency in storing batteries in RVs.
