Key Highlights

The Saudi National Bank, headquartered in Riyadh and established in 1953, is one of the largest financial institutions in Saudi Arabia. Formerly known as The National Commercial Bank, it was renamed The Saudi National Bank in April 2021. The bank offers a comprehensive suite of financial products and services through four main segments: Retail, Wholesale, Capital Market, and International. The Retail segment serves individuals and private banking clients by providing personal loans, current accounts, and a wide range of Shariah-compliant financial products. The Wholesale segment caters to small, medium, and large businesses with credit facilities, financing products, and treasury services, including foreign exchange and money market solutions. It also engages in investment and trading activities, while managing associated risks. The Capital Market segment offers wealth management, asset management, investment banking, and share brokerage services. The International segment provides banking services outside Saudi Arabia and participates in distributing Islamic insurance products, managing private equity and hedge funds, issuing bonds, investing in real estate, and handling derivatives and trade finance. The bank's digital offerings include debit and credit cards, mobile and online banking, and cash management services. It operates 506 branches, 12 retail centers, 7 corporate service centers, 130 QuickPay remittance centers, and has branches in Bahrain, UAE, Qatar, and Singapore.
