Key Highlights

The Shoko Chukin Bank, Ltd., founded in 1936, is a Japanese financial institution headquartered in Yaesu, Chuo-ku, Tokyo. It was originally established under the Shoko Chukin Bank Limited Act to provide critical financial support to small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) during Japan's early Showa-era economic crises. Unlike conventional commercial banks, Shoko Chukin was formed through a joint effort between the government and SME cooperatives, giving it a unique public-private mandate to serve as a specialized institution for SME financing and development. Over the decades, the bank has evolved into a nationwide institution with 102 domestic offices across all 47 prefectures and four overseas representative offices in London, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Bangkok. Its services focus primarily on the financial and advisory needs of SMEs and SME cooperatives, offering tailored products such as long- and short-term loans, credit enhancements, business revitalization support, and assistance with overseas expansion. It also collaborates closely with regional financial institutions and local governments to foster regional economic development.
